Settlement reached on subdivision completion

The Town of Wilmington has reached a settlement with developer Patrick Cone for the completion of Middlesex Pines. Cone will pay the town $37,500 for the completion of the subdivision.

The roads in the subdivision have never been completed, leading to complaints from the residents. Cone forfeited a bond of $80,000, but that was not enough to complete the work.

The matter was headed for court, until Cone approached the town manager, seeking an out-of-court settlement. The agreement was reached last Thursday.

The town manager issued the following press release:

Through various discussions, I have concluded that the planning board was given incomplete and misleading information concerning Middlesex Pines subdivision I and II. This caused problems that led to a series of actions by the town and Mr. Cone, trustee for Elm Square Builders Realty Trust, which were unfortunate for all concerned. In fact, it caused the Town to form an opinion of Mr. Cone that was not accurate.

In an effort to resolve all outstanding differences and misunderstandings, the Town and Mr. Cone have reached an agreement. Mr. Cone and the Town want to see the roadway and related improvements completed to the planning board specifications as soon as possible. To meet this end, Mr. Cone has agreed to deposit a sum of money with the Town to cover the difference between the bid price and the security previously posted.

Appeals board weighs IMG's 774 proposal

Wilmington faced its first challenge from the state's Chapter 774 law at a crowded board of appeals continued hearing Tuesday night.

Amid sporadic outbursts of anger and applause, representatives of the Investors Management Group (IMG) presented revised plans for their condominium complex proposed for Ballardvale Street in North Wilmington. Under the law, the Wilmington Board of Appeals makes the final decision to either grant a town comprehensive permit or reject the proposal, allowing the developer to appeal to the state Housing Appeals Committee. The developer also meets separately with the Conservation Commission.

Though proponents said they made at least four changes to the original plans, neighbors felt they weren't enough to make the project palatable to them.

The biggest change was to go under the Homeownership Opportunity Program (HOP) and agree to sell, not rent, the townhouse style two bedroom apartments. Under HOP, 48 of the units will be sold to moderate income families. Other changes included a reduction in the number of units from 204 to 192, a further set-back of units from the property lines of abutters on Arlene Avenue, and the reduction of building height to under 35 feet.

Even with these changes, the 100 or so residents and town officials in attendance seemed in agreement board members should deny the permit because of too many unanswered questions.

One of the main bones of contention was the lack of an Environmental Impact Report (EIR). Such a report would give more detailed information on such things as wetlands, disturbance to the environment, water drainage, traffic, and impact on schools. It is usually required on dense projects under the 774 law.

Several people spoke in favor of completing an EIR before granting a comprehensive permit.

"Without that impact study, I don't know how you as a board can make a decision," said Selectman Jim Stewart. Appeals board Chairman Bruce MacDonald said his board realized the importance of the report and understood "it could either kill the project or make it go."

When IMG attorney Robert Shafer said the report would not have to be submitted unless a decision is made on zoning, Stewart replied it seemed they were "putting the cart before the horse."

Wore paint.

After having her face painted at the Kidsplace booth, Janeen Neale sat down to enjoy some cotton candy at the Wilmington High School tennis courts on Tuesday evening, the first night of Wilmington's Fourth of July celebration. Events will be taking place every night through Saturday, when a fireworks display will climax the week. A complete schedule of Fourth of July events is in a special section inside this week's Town Crier.

Busing every child is goal for schools

With the busing of every child in the Wilmington School System as a "major goal," Assistant Supt. Henry Dembowski explained the changes and routes most buses will take in the fall at last Wednesday's school committee meeting.

Each school in the district, said Dembowski, will have its own runs. There will be three "tiers" of staggered arrivals next September, with runs expected to be shorter so students will arrive on time. Students will be allowed to walk only with a note to the building principal.

As far as possible, Dembowski explained, "buses will be traversing every street we can safely traverse." Particular attention has been paid to the Lucaya Circle and Aldrich Road areas, whose residents triggered a second look at the bus situation, as well as the concerns of 56 parents who took the time to write letters on the busing.

Dembowski expects bus routes will be finalized by mid-July and routes published earlier than in previous years.

Resident Peg Power, who happens to drive a school bus, asked what effect the changes would have on crossing guards. When Dembowski said they would probably be needed for those students choosing to walk, Power accused school administrators of "placating" certain residents by now offering two options at the taxpayer's expense. Dembowski agreed "we're providing a service" which may be a "luxury."

Power expressed her displeasure, saying "logistically, it's going to be a hornet's nest."

Tighe seeks housing authority involvement

This program doesn't cure all the problems that exist in a community," said Lowell Housing Authority's Victor Norman, a consultant on Jay Tighe's proposed condominium project off Reea and Hopkins Streets.

Norman was referring to the Chapter 774 law and the Homeownership Opportunity Program (HOP) being used by Tighe to push through his 414 unit complex. He was speaking before members of the Wilmington Housing Authority.

Tighe, Norman, and attorney Carol Rolf came before the board in hopes that members would cooperate and buy some of the units to later sell or rent to low income families.

Though WHA Chairman Kevin McMillan told proponents they came "at a bad time" since his board has several other housing commitments, members listened to an outline of the proposal and asked a few questions.

Dan Gillis questioned street widths and road access. He suggested rather than use Reed Street as an access, since that seems to be the center of some controversy, Tighe use Hopkins Street for the main access road. This, he added, was better from a planning point of view.

Lester Chisholm, who still retains ownership of the site, told the board a road from Hopkins Street to the project would disturb his mink and his business and cause his neighbors on Hopkins Street to complain.

When the question of low water pressure in the area was brought up, Rolf said they were well aware of that problem. It was also brought out that plans call for a water hookup from Dorchester Street and Reed Street.

Resident Anne Linehan referred to the project's density.

"That is a very high density," she said, adding, "Is that negotiable?"

Tighe replied that "our problem is we haven't been able to find anyone to negotiate with us." Rolf added that 10 units per acre is a "typical" figure and ensures that a developer will make a profit. She explained they are asking Wilmington selectmen to apply for a Community Development Action Grant (CDAG) to help fund infrastructure, such as roads, connected with the project. Selectmen can only request the grant if Wilmington becomes a Massachusetts Housing Partnership community.

McMillan questioned what type of system would be used to allot units. Rolf said though they hadn't made up their minds yet, close to 100 people have already submitted names for the more affordable units.

When Norman was asked what rights abutters and property owners have under the 774 law, he hesitated then replied they have a right to peace in their neighborhood and rights within their property boundaries. However, he added, "the right of the larger society transcends the rights of the individual abutter."

Norman went on to say, in the long run, the 774 law and HOP may not be the best approach as the program doesn't benefit either the elderly or low income families. "It does fill one need: middle income housing," he said, adding right now there is a lot of experimentation going on and "it's being used everywhere."

Satellite mapping project underway

Smile, Wilmington. You're having your picture taken.

The "picture" is really in the form of an aerial map, being taken by satellite. And it's happening this week.

The groundwork for the mapping actually began months ago, with the painting of white crosses at various locations around town, to create reference points.

The computer mapping is being done by Avis Mapping Co. The process is a new one, used for the first time for a municipality in this area in Fall River this spring. Wilmington is the second place it is being used.

The satellite mapping actually uses three satellites simultaneously, out of seven in orbit. They must line up in a particular formation to create a "window" for the mapping process.

The process now underway is a three-tier computerized photo. The base photo shows planimetry, or a horizontal layout, according to Gordon Derman, president of Avis.

The second level adds two-foot contours. The third level is a color photo, already taken.

The three tiers are then merged, using the target points. The result is a stereoscopic photo.

The photos shot by satellite are transmitted in digital format and stored in computers. The color photos were taken from a plane on film.

The process is known as GPS, or geodetic positioning services. It is able to produce an exact mapping of an area, giving precise distances. Land surveying, said Derman, often produces erroneous readings, especially when measuring across spans which are difficult to measure, such as swamps, lakes or difficult terrain.

The maps will be used by the town for a number of applications. The first step will be to create a new set of assessors' maps, which not only show lot lines but also give a three-dimensional satellite photo of the land and features. The maps will also have applications for engineers and surveyors.

Magic in the air at Wilmington library

Magic's in the air, especially for those elementary children registered in the Magical Summer of Reading program co-sponsored by the Wilmington Reading Department and Wilmington Memorial Library. The major goal of the program is to encourage summer reading and regular visits to the public library.

The sixth annual program got underway last week as students flocked to the library to redeem magical coupons for a summer reading kit. The kit contains a folder for logging library visits and books read, a bookmark and sticker, and a leaf to be added to a magic vine.

Each time a child visits the library, a magic dove is stamped on his or her folder. All children registering by July 15 will be entered in a special drawing for tickets to see Le Grand David Company at the Cabot Street Theater in Beverly.

Throughout the summer there will be drawings for prizes, movies shown each Wednesday at 2:30, and a bean guessing contest. There will also be a special visit by the Great

ON YOUR FEET

Laser Surgery is one of the newest and most significant applications of laser technology in the last two decades. Laser Surgery takes advantage of the intense heat generating properties to cut and remove tissue without the undesirable side effects that sometimes result from using a scalpel. The Laser produces a man-made light that has only one color and does not produce any undesirable radiation. The Laser we use is a Carbon-Dioxide Laser and it is the most versatile of the medical Lasers.

In our office we now use this laser technology in the removal of warts and other lesions of the hands, feet, genitals and other body areas. Warts to be removed are identified, anesthetized with local anesthesia and "fired" with short bursts of laser light. Not only does the laser remove the warty tissue, but it also stops the bleeding and prevents the swelling that usually results in post-operative discomfort. The procedure is very effective, with minimal discomfort and limitations.

Investigation no fun for Fun on the Fourth committee

An open letter to the community from the 4th of July Committee:

We would like to address the people of Wilmington to ask them for their input to decide the fate of the Committee.

This is the seventh year of the 4th of July Program, and the Committee has done everything in its power to keep politics out of it. It seems as though we have failed in the past two years.

During the winter of 1986 when the Committee held its first meeting, we decided to change the location of the carnival to the area between the Swain School and the 4th of July headquarters. It was to be moved because of the high school expansion, to improve safety conditions, and to ease the burden of having the program in separate locations.

Following a series of open meetings with the 4th of July Committee, the neighbors who abut the property and the appeals board which, at times, became very hostile, the committee withdrew its request and returned to the high school parking lot to help insure that everyone was treated fairly during the festivities. Also armed with information obtained through the meetings, the committee worked hard to correct problems to eliminate hardships and nuisances experienced by the neighbors.

Unfortunately, it didn't end there. A neighbor and a candidate for the School Committee felt that their questions were not totally answered (even though they have not showed up for any of our monthly meetings, which are advertised and open to the public). They went to the district attorney with a list of questions to investigate the committee through the town manager.

After being informed of this, the committee agreed to attend an open session of the selectmen to answer questions, and neither party showed up for the meeting.

I was then personally interviewed by the district attorney's office, and they seemed satisfied with the information given to them by the town manager and the 4th of July Committee.

This did not appease the two people requesting the investigation, because they now have requested the attorney general's office to conduct an investigation, which we are in the middle of today.

With most of the high school renovations complete, we again felt that we should move to the Swain School, aided by input from the safety group. Again we met with a representative group of the neighbors and again they felt it would be a tremendous inconvenience if we moved the carnival. After the meeting the committee met and voted unanimously to leave the carnival at the high school and provide enjoyment for everyone.

At this year's appeals hearing for our permit, we were praised by two neighbors for last year's performance, and I finally felt that we were home free.

But, alas, politics (at least we presume it was politics) reared its ugly head again.

We again sent a letter to the school committee requesting the use of the parking lot (I believe this is a courtesy request, as the parking lots are under the jurisdiction of the town manager/selectmen), and it was tabled by a member until a representative of the 4th of July Committee attended a meeting to provide answers to some problems.

Although I have just opened a new business, was in full swing with adult softball games (I had a game that night and left the team short-handed), and was involved in planning the activities, including a meeting the same night, I reluctantly attended the school committee meeting to answer the questions and/or address problems.

The two questions asked were basically who does my committee report to, and what do we do with the money we earn.

I answered these questions in my most polite business style, although

I was burning inside, especially after the school committee woman opened by making a motion to approve the permit and saying she wouldn't vote against it.

I will publicly apologize to this person if it is the committee's policy to check the organizational and financial structures of all groups requesting use of school properties.

I met with the 4th of July Committee after the school committee meeting and we voted unanimously to answer these questions for the public and to let them know what we have been through--so here goes:

1. We are an independent group who have grown in number from seven to 16 (because of the size of the program). We meet once a month (first Wednesday from November to July) and report our meetings to the town manager (as a courtesy only). Our meetings are open to the public.
2. We try to do our own fundraising to cover the costs of the 4th of July program, lighting of the Common at Christmastime, and expenses associated with the remodeling and upkeep of our headquarters so all non-profit groups may participate in its use.
3. We have a very competent treasurer to provide monthly financial statements, which are available to be checked at our monthly meeting by anyone attending the meeting.
4. Our pay is a set of red shirts, white hats, and the satisfaction of making a lot of people happy.

We place our fate in your hands.

1. If you feel we have done a good job, support us.
2. If you feel we are doing a poor job and you know of a group to take it over and do better, let us know, and we will gladly step aside.
3. If you feel we are misusing funds, confront us face to face and we will open the books for you. The choices should be decided by the residents of this community.

All we ask is that politics are kept out of it - the town is having enough problems with that already.

Jack Cushing, Chairman
And all the members of the 4th of July Committee

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Two hundred and eleven years ago this Saturday, fifty-five men representing thirteen oppressed colonies made their permanent mark on history, by affixing their signatures to a Declaration of Independence. The document was a radical one indeed, not solely for its statements of independence from the Crown, but because it took a non-traditional view of government. Jefferson, who was the principal author of the document, viewed the State as essential only for the purposes of securing our inalienable rights, and that whenever any government threatened these, "it is the right of the people to alter or to abolish it."

Life and liberty are perhaps easy enough to define. We can enjoy life when we are free, and we are certainly free in the United States. But then there is 'the pursuit of happiness.' This is a catch all phrase, and for the most part it refers to being free of an intrusive government. In this we can each enjoy the greatest measure of happiness and freedom. But the past many years have seen a government which is more intrusive, and perhaps threatening.

So as we all jump into the fun and celebrations which the Fourth is rightfully famous for, we might take just a quick break between sausages and short-cake to reflect upon the liberties we are all fortunate enough to enjoy, and whether or not our government is really securing them for us. The answer to the question might be yes, were you to give it little thought. However, upon a closer inspection we find that the sentiments of the preamble of the Declaration of Independence are under greater threat than ever before.

Were John Hancock, Elbridge Gerry, John Adams, Sam Adams and Robert Paine brought back to life today, their perspectives would be invaluable. It is these five men who signed the Declaration on behalf of Massachusetts. Hancock and Gerry, both of whom were wealthy merchants, would certainly suffer heart attacks at the thought of modern day Taxachusetts. John Adams, who was the second President, and the first from Massachusetts, would probably get a good, hearty chuckle out of the Dukakis candidacy. Robert Paine, a Harvard lawyer who was a Massachusetts Supreme Court Justice, might shudder at the thought of a U.S. Supreme Court controlled by ideologues. And Sam Adams, long biographed as a rebel by very nature, would immediately get his own talk-show on WRKO, pushing for rebellion.

Nevertheless, July 4, 1987 should be another good one. There will be the usual abundance of activity, and as much fun as you can possibly stand. But no one should fail to recognize the real purpose of Independence Day, which must be to evaluate how strong our liberties still are. In light of road blocks, a breaking down of search and seizure laws, and state mandates that attempt to override local control in every area from housing to education, one might want to stand up and shout, "We still hold these truths to be self-evident."

point of view

Freedom vs. Ch. 774

by Arlene Surprenant

This is a special time of year for all who believe in freedom and rights and patriotism and the American way. Saturday is Independence Day, which once again marks the official breaking of ties with Great Britain. This is also the year Americans are toasting the bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, the oldest written national instrument of government in force in the world today.

Among all the celebrations is one small voice struggling to be heard.

It's the voice of a growing number of Massachusetts homeowners and other citizens. It's the voice of those dissatisfied with a law which denies citizens the basic freedom to enjoy their homes and neighborhoods without fear of infringement from developers intent on pushing through unsuitable high density projects.

It's the voice of residents from Wilmington and Tewksbury and Billerica, from Andover and Burlington and Dracut and Wakefield -- in fact, from any town which doesn't meet an arbitrary state subsidized housing goal of ten percent.

The law is Chapter 774 of the Acts of 1969. Its intent -- to provide for the construction of homes and multi-units for those in need of affordable housing where local restrictions hamper such construction -- is admirable.

We all know someone close who has been priced out of the housing market due to out of sight home costs, property values, and mortgage rates. The law in this regard is working, with some 3,200 low to moderate income housing units being built in Massachusetts in the last decade and a half. The law has also served to make towns aware of the dire need for affordable housing. This is the good side of the law.

But, to many, the bad outweighs the good.

Under the law, the developer holds all the cards and has the most to gain. He can push through high density projects, part of which are subsidized through state agencies. He can bypass town meeting. He can save money by presenting limited plans to only one board -- the zoning board of appeals. If he loses his bid for a comprehensive permit at the local level, he has the right to appeal to a higher board which, in many cases, finds in his favor simply because the need for lower cost homes is so great. The developer, in the end, walks away with a sizable profit at the town's and neighborhood's expense.

The town, too, has a few rights under the law. The town can either set conditions in working with the developer or say no to a project it feels can legally be denied. If it's a Massachusetts Housing Partnership community, a town can also apply for state grants to determine if a project is "reasonable."

But the abutter or average homeowner most affected by such a project, under the law, has NO RIGHTS AT ALL.

In many Massachusetts families, both the husband and wife work to keep on top of the high cost of owning a home. They struggle to maintain their property and neighborhood, to put food on the table, to clothe and educate their children. They have a right to expect, when they move into a neighborhood, that the zoning won't change so drastically that they are forced to accept proposals which negatively affect their way of life and lowers their property values.

This same husband and wife also pay taxes to a state which turns around and says, unless a community meets a certain housing goal, it must accept a developer's proposal or be cut off from further state funds. These are the same funds which come out of the taxpayer's pocket in the first place.

Somehow, the whole thing doesn't sound like the pursuit of happiness defined in the Declaration of Independence or the equal protection under the law promised in the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution.

When that amendment says "no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge (deprive) the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States," one must wonder if it's referring to citizens coming smack up against the 774 law. One must wonder if local residents aren't entitled to have a say in what goes in their backyards, especially when these projects traditionally increase traffic congestion, disturb the environment, increase concerns for wetlands and nearby rivers and streams, negatively impact schools, place a drain on town services, and destroy the local planning of a community.

The ultimate wellspring of power lies with the people. The voice of the people is heard through the media and from every small gathering this Fourth of July. It's heard during local and state elections. In the end, it's the citizens of Massachusetts who must make a choice and take a stand. Only then will the law work for the good of all citizens and not just the few.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

As a representative of Laidlaw-GSX, I feel it is necessary to comment on the incidents of June 9, 1987 from our perspective. It seems from discussions with the administration of the City of Wilmington, that the events which lead to the escort and search of one of our rubbish trucks were purely innocent circumstances which were misconstrued.

The intent and action of Laidlaw-GSX has always been, and will continue to be honest and forthright. It also seems a bit unfair that you would determine the search to be "non-conclusive" as it has been inequitably stated that no rubbish from outside Wilmington was included in the load. It seems very conclusive that Laidlaw-GSX did not willfully or intentionally attempt to have the city pay for disposal of rubbish from another city. I think it is only fair that your statement be modified to state that the results were indeed "very" conclusive.

Laidlaw-GSX does not condone or tolerate any implied action such as this, that might jeopardize our reputation, or this contract. We encourage investigation and probing into our actions and motives, as we have no sin to hide, but are primarily interested in providing the quality of service, which the citizens of Wilmington have a right to expect.

Sincerely,
Donald E. Koogler
Regional Vice President

Dear Larz:

I would like to thank the Wilmington American Legion Post 136 for sponsoring me to attend the 1987 Massachusetts Boys State program held at Bentley College in Waltham.

During the week of June 13 through June 20, I and over 700 high school junior boys from across the state were schooled in the areas of law, the governing of a municipality, and the procedure of a political party convention.

It was a great learning experience and I appreciate having the opportunity to participate in it.

Thankfully,
Jonathan J. Oliver
WHS Class of '88

Dear Larz:

Let me take this opportunity to respond to a letter that was written by Ms. Oxman, W.H.S. Class of '89, which appeared in last week's Town Crier.

I understand, Ms. Oxman is a classmate of reporter Surprenant's youngster and under the circumstances, she is entitled to her opinion of reporter Surprenant's reporting ability and I am entitled to mine.

I want Lisa to understand that I had more experience (my three years on the Planning Board) before becoming a selectman, than any current member of the Board of Selectmen had before they were first elected to the board.

I ran a thoroughly clean and aggressive campaign and I hope she wasn't implying anything to the contrary.

Finally, I will always vote independently of my colleagues when I am convinced my stand is correct and their's is not.

Sincerely,
Michael V. McCoy
selectman

Dear Larz:

After having read the Lowell Sun article about last Thursday's Zoning Board of Appeals hearing in Tewksbury regarding the proposed 60 unit town house development off Benson Road, it's understandable that Rep. Jim Miceli would be outspoken at that meeting. However, on the same night there was a neighborhood meeting on a 414 unit condominium proposal in Wilmington. Neighbors in the immediate area have repeatedly asked for Rep. Miceli's help on this project.

We were surprised that he was not in attendance at that meeting. In fact, he has not even bothered to attend any prior meetings. In the past, Rep. Miceli has taken a stand on conserving open space. He has been the voice of the neighbors against high density projects, increased traffic and similar neighborhood concerns. We realize that Tewksbury residents are very concerned with a 6-0 unit project. However, we in Wilmington are facing a proposed 414 unit condo project which will ultimately impact the whole town. Why wasn't Mr. Miceli, our representative and resident of the Town of Wilmington at that meeting? This meeting was publicized on the front page of the local newspaper.

I think all residents should look closely at who stands up and pays more than lip service when such proposals come along. They should be remembered at election time. It was also interesting to note at last Thursday's meeting that only selectman Doucette showed up, though others on that board have been in attendance at prior meetings. We need all the help we can get!! We need the support of people in office who have the power to bring our views back to the State.

We thank those who have cared enough to get involved already. As a town, we must all stand together or we all lose!

Peter and Annette Pellegrini

Dear Larz:

On Saturday afternoon, May 23, vandals broke into the basement of St. Elizabeth's Episcopal Chapel on the corner of Forest Street and Adirich Road and set off four chemical fire extinguishers. Unknown to me and accompanied by my pre-schooler, I went over to the Chapel to drop off some Sunday School materials and walked into a cloud of chemicals, suffering burns to my face, eyes, nose and lungs.

Are there children in Wilmington who are so bored they have resorted to vandalizing a church just for the fun of it?

Remember that old but familiar saying, "Parents, do you know where your children are?" Well, if your child came home on Memorial Day Weekend with powdery, dusty clothes and irritated eyes, now you know where he or she might have been.

Neighbors voice anger, concern over Tighe's condos

Though it was only advertised as a neighborhood information meeting on Shawsheen River Estates, at times, the large crowd in attendance gave a hint of what lies ahead.

Approximately 150 neighbors of the proposed 414 unit condominium project slated for the end of Reed Street fired questions at developer Jay Tighe and his staff of professionals at last Thursday's meeting. At times, the voices were angry. Tighe has been making the rounds of town boards to seek a comprehensive permit through the Wilmington Board of Appeals.

Architect Henry FitzGerald, who has designed similar projects in Lowell, Dracut, and Plymouth, explained the layout of the 61 buildings. He said there will be a 50 foot buffer around the wetlands and the developer will stay out of the flood plain. The Shawsheen River, he added, would be used for storm drain runoff and a plan to extend the sewer from Lake Street to Hopkins Street is under investigation.

"We're not looking to build a small ghetto" or a "brick jungle" he assured skeptical neighbors.

Proponents said a traffic study is currently being done on Hopkins Street, even though some people pointed out with nearby schools closed and planned commercial development at the end of Hopkins Street not begun, the study would be inaccurate. Proponents said they may also do a school impact study and an Environmental Impact Report if required by the state.

Questions were raised on traffic, buffer between property lines and buildings; sewerage, impact on the school system, access to the project and water pressure, which Grace Drive homeowner Bob Landrigan said was low because they were at the end of the line.

According to one Shawsheen Avenue resident, if the project goes through, the area will end up being "a parking lot of cars who can't get out of their driveways." Tighe has said they are planning on parking for 860 cars.

Dennis Volpe raised a safety issue in opening Reed Street to through traffic with two handicapped individuals at the end of that street.

Several present spoke in favor of the project, asking how they could show their support or sign up for the units. Tighe expressed his confidence.

"We feel very confident, with the cooperation of the town, this will go forward," he said.

Maureen Kuhn asked how Tighe expected to get the cooperation of the town when an article to rezone that same site to R20 was "overwhelmingly defeated."

"Right now this proposal sounds like the dumbest thing we've ever heard," she added.

Tighe said those involved in the project are risking a large amount of money.

"Many of us have invested an awful lot of money in our homes. We're not making money on our property. We're trying to live there," Volpe called out in reply.

Videotape used in public hearings

Lester Chisholm has used a VCR camera to record events at three meetings dealing with a housing project on his land.

At last Tuesday's meeting between selectmen and state officials, Jay Tighe, developer of the 414 unit condominium project proposed for Chisholm property, turned over one of the tapes to Tom Gleason, director of the HOP program. He said it would show what he was "up against" at a prior Affordable Housing Task Force meeting. Gleason quietly returned the tape after the meeting.

At last week's neighborhood meeting on the same project, Lester Chisholm tried to record the night's events with no luck. This time neighbor Dennis Volpe requested Lester put away the camera. With a little coaxing, he did.

The July 5, 1962 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

James Donahue walked out of the WHA special meeting calling it an "Iron Curtain" meeting. The group was called together by Chairman Ed Forrest for 10 p.m. because he said he couldn't get a quorum at 7:30. With Donovan's departure there was no quorum at 10 p.m. either.

Wilmington amateur radio operators, members of the American Radio Relay League at Wilmington's Civil Defense, working from Camp Forty Acres June 23-24 exchanged over 600 calls with other radio stations throughout the U.S. and foreign countries. Last year as EMass champs they logged a little over 400 stations.

Pictured wearing clothes they made themselves were Betty Smith of State Street; Edith Young of State Street and Bonnie Ramsdell of Glen Road, all members the 4-H Nifty Needles Club led by Mrs.

Paul Standish. The girls displayed blue ribbons awarded by a 4-H judge at the dress evaluation day held recently in Reading.

Mrs. Al Guarino of Forest Street won the mythical Town Crier Golden Peaspoon for picking the first meal of peas in town for the year.

Mail carrier Richard Woods won a new Dodge Dart in a New Jersey school drawing.

After a vacation with his parents, George Justice, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Justice of Chestnut Street returned to Washington DC where he was a government employee.

Pictured were Boutwell School "All A" students Martha Michael, Rebecca and Jonathan Rounds with teacher Kathleen O'Brien.

Marie Micalizzi McClanahan was guest of honor at a farwell party at Bedford Air Base. She was to fly to Turkey to join husband Roy who was serving with a U.S. Logistics group stationed in Ankara.

Art awards

Boston Globe Art contest winners Ron Brabant, Andre Paradis, Andrea Kane and Cathy Murphy, all of Wilmington.

Youths place in art contest

Four Wilmington High School students, Dana Boone, Cathy Murphy, Ron Brabant and Andrea Kane, and one student from the North Intermediate School, Andre Paradis, have been honored by the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Competition. Boone and Paradis were Gold Key winners and Murphy, Brabant and Kane received honorable mentions. Out of a record number of 6,000 entries there were only 500 Gold Keys and 250 honorable mentions!

Boone and Murphy are two of Ms. Suzette Hall's photography students. Boone's 8 x 10 black and white photograph was from a documentary assignment he did of his family. The photographer was able to catch his subject just at the right moment resulting with a very sensitive portrait of his brother. Cathy's photograph was of Boston where she used a fish eye lens, which created an unusual perspective of the city.

Ms. Laurie Schmidt, Andrea Kane's instructor, indicated that Andrea had a special sensitivity to color. Andrea's entry was a still life rendering using a wide range of colored pencils in a layered technique. Ron, also Ms. Schmidt's student, won his honorable mention for his earthenware teapot. His vessel was in the shape of a tree and went through a complicated glazing process.

Andre Paradis received his Gold Key for his mixed media drawing entitled "The Art Room." Paradis used pen and india ink to do a gesture drawing of his art teacher, Ms. Dawn Nelson, and the room around her. He then glazed the drawing with graphite, later erasing the graphite in certain areas, giving the drawing a translucent quality.

The Gold Key recipients, Paradis and Boone, had their art work exhibited at Faneuil Hall Marketplace from February 12 to March 8.

Art awards Boston Globe Art contest winners Ron Brabant, Andre Paradis, Andrea Kane and Cathy Murphy, all of Wilmington.

Youths place in art contest

Four Wilmington High School students, Dana Boone, Cathy Murphy, Ron Brabant and Andrea Kane, and one student from the North Intermediate School, Andre Paradis, have been honored by the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Competition. Boone and Paradis were Gold Key winners and Murphy, Brabant and Kane received honorable mentions. Out of a record number of 6,000 entries there were only 500 Gold Keys and 250 honorable mentions!

Boone and Murphy are two of Ms. Suzette Hall's photography students. Boone's 8 x 10 black and white photograph was from a documentary assignment he did of his family. The photographer was able to catch his subject just at the right moment resulting with a very sensitive portrait of his brother. Cathy's photograph was of Boston where she used a fish eye lens, which created an unusual perspective of the city.

Ms. Laurie Schmidt, Andrea Kane's instructor, indicated that Andrea had a special sensitivity to color. Andrea's entry was a still life rendering using a wide range of colored pencils in a layered technique. Ron, also Ms. Schmidt's student, won his honorable mention for his earthenware teapot. His vessel was in the shape of a tree and went through a complicated glazing process.

Andre Paradis received his Gold Key for his mixed media drawing entitled "The Art Room." Paradis used pen and india ink to do a gesture drawing of his art teacher, Ms. Dawn Nelson, and the room around her. He then glazed the drawing with graphite, later erasing the graphite in certain areas, giving the drawing a translucent quality.

The Gold Key recipients, Paradis and Boone, had their art work exhibited at Faneuil Hall Marketplace from February 12 to March 8.

Principal chosen for Wildwood School

by Arlene Surprenant
Burlington's Michael Tikonoff got the nod as Wildwood School principal at a packed meeting of the Wilmington School Committee last Wednesday amid continued criticism of the principal selection process.

Tikonoff, an administrative manager of a magnet school of the future located at the John Tobin School in Cambridge with 13 years educational experience, attained the position through a four to two vote of the committee. Shirley Callan and James Demos cast the two dissenting votes.

Discussion centered largely on the legal process which gives Supt. Robert Horan the sole power to recommend final candidates for committee approval or disapproval.

"I'm upset with the process," said Callan in an emotional statement to the board. She added she was also "deeply disappointed in the superintendent" for his handling of the process and overlooking the merits of Wildwood's acting principal Robert Arsenault. Arsenault had his share of supporters in the audience who felt he should have been at least granted an interview before the school committee.

Horan questioned Callan's "integrity" in regards to the process and her professionalism saying, "you have said some things that put you in a position of high risk." He claimed his recommendation was based not on personal reasons but on professional ones.

Other committeemen stepped into the fray. Both Bob Peterson and James Demos felt the committee should have been allowed to interview all six final candidates. Peterson pointed out though he was aware that the process "can never, ever be changed," he was still unhappy with it. Demos felt his committee was "shortchanged" by the process and suggested next time no less than four candidates come before the committee.

Chairman Tony Accardi and Bridget Zukas both stood up for the superintendent's ability to "weed out" the best person for the job. At the same time they recognized there are good candidates who "just cannot be selected."

"If he's the superintendent, let him be the superintendent," said Zukas, adding Horan has made a decision "with which he has to live." Zukas also found it "very threatening" that some people present inferred the superintendent's opinion shouldn't count.

On a positive note, committeeman Michael Thomas urged Wildwood parents to channel their "enthusiasm" against the process into offering help to their new principal next year.

Pup at the pound

"Hello, Mom? You won't believe it. The dog catcher picked me up, and now I'm locked up in the dog pound. What do you mean, you can't come get me? You mean I've got to wait here until someone adopts me? Help!" This tan-colored pup, a mixed-breed Labrador, is available for adoption. The Wilmington dog officer may be contacted by calling the police business line, 658-5071.

Dogs in pound

The Wilmington dog officer is presently holding the following dogs at the dog pound:

Male Siberian husky, red, leather collar, picked up June 1 at Lowell and West streets.

Female lab-mix pup, tan, available for adoption.

Male poodle (?) mix, all white with flea collar, picked up 6/30 at the Colonial Park Mall.

The Wilmington dog officer may be reached by calling the Wilmington Police at 658-5071.

Wilmington senior topics

Independence Day

Town offices will be closed Friday, July 3 in celebration of Independence Day. The senior center will therefore be closed. Meals will not be served or delivered. A shutin who is living alone and unable to prepare a meal for themselves may order an extra meal any day of the week. This meal can be refrigerated. The minibus will not be on the road, so please make appointments accordingly.

Seniors who will be attending the many functions being held throughout the week on the common, would be wise to park in the senior center parking lot.

Good Day Show

We received a call from tv channel 5. Every Friday, starting on July 17, they will invite 30 seniors to be their guests on the Good Day Show. The show goes on the air at 10 a.m. It is necessary to be at the station at 8:15 a.m. They want to seat everyone by 9 a.m. If you would like to reserve a seat on the show any Friday call channel 5 1-449-0400 ext. 4300 and make a reservation.

Arts and crafts picnic

The arts and crafts picnic will be held Thursday, July 23 in the picnic grounds of the Tewksbury-Wilmington Elks. The day will begin at 10 a.m. with coffee and donuts being served. At noon a chicken barbecue dinner will be served. We will be signing up for this social on Thursday, July 2. A $1.00 non-refundable deposit will be requested. The all day social is paid for by the Arts and Crafts Committee from money realized through their fall fair. On other years, raffles were held from the deposit money. This year the committee has selected to purchase a professional-type camera with the deposit money. The camera will be used to photograph the many services and programs we have available for the seniors through the senior center.

Respite Care Services

We have a part time job for a respite care service. We would like a senior with experience working in the elderly health care profession. The job will require transporting and accompanying an elderly person to medical appointments who lives alone and cannot use our minibus. They will be required to set up medication calendars for seniors with poor eyesight or frail with age, taking a number of pills. It will be necessary to check with the doctor on medications being prescribed. Too many of our seniors are being over-medicated. Home visits will be made to disabled and ill seniors living alone, to see that they are getting services they are entitled to. The job entails 20 hours a week at $4.81 an hour, a car is necessary. If interested call or visit the senior center.

Council meets July 6

The July Council on Aging meeting will be held in the function room at the senior center Monday, July 6 at 1:30 p.m. Please try to attend this meeting. The officers who will serve on the board for fiscal year 87-88 will be voted into office at this meeting. They will be looking ahead on ways to better serve the senior citizens of the town. But to carry out their jobs to the benefit of all of us they will need input from those present at the meeting.

Lifeline

Many hospitals surrounding Wilmington are providing Lifeline services to the elderly. Lifeline is a personal emergency response service to handicapped persons or older people living alone who may need emergency help quickly. A small electric button is worn at all times while you are in your home. When pressed the electric device connected to your telephone is activated. It alerts the hospital that you are in trouble. We suggest all our seniors living alone wear a Life Line button on their person in their homes.

It is frightening to know that you are alone when a medical problem hits. The Life Line button will give you knowledge that help can be at your fingertip. The cost of this service is $15 a month. A small fee for a button that can save your life.

IMG President Philip Sloane explained such a report was costly and could take up to a year to complete. "We're not trying to jam a project down your throat," he assured suspicious residents, adding IMG won't escape any of the steps in the lengthy process, including the EIR.

Another area of disagreement was IMG's plan to sewer the project.

According to Shafer and engineer Bill Moore, plans call for bringing the sewer line down Ballardvale and Salem Streets to connect into the existing Gearty Street (Corum Meadows) pumping station. This, they explained, goes along with the town's master sewer plan. They added the town's own consultant indicated there was "plenty of gallons available in that system to accommodate our project."

Water and sewer commissioners disagreed.

"There is capacity today. When we're designing the sewers, we're designing them for the future," said George Allan, adding IMG's plans don't coincide with the master plan.

Arthur Smith was firm that he and Allan have "repetitiously refused to deviate from our design." He accused IMG of altering the system for their own benefit.

Several statements on the 774 process were met by angry murmurs from the vocal crowd. When asked what IMG would do if the board denied the permit, Shafer said they would most likely submit a proposal to the state to increase density to 375 or 400 units. This would help "justify" a state requirement that 40 percent instead of 25 percent of the units be affordable. He added if the town wouldn't work with the developer, they still had the option of going back to their original plan to rent units.

Neighbors stood up one after another to express their displeasure with density and overdevelopment, water problems, traffic, and the 774 law.

A potential "serious hazard" was called to the board's attention by Health Director Greg Erickson. He said he feared for children living in the development since the only open play area was two retention ponds and a large wetland area.

"I feel, as an individual member of this town, I don't have any rights whatsoever," said Arlene Avenue resident Mark Lutz to a round of applause.

His neighbor Bob Gosse asked board members to "cut out unwarranted and unreasonable development of the town" and exercise "ultimate control" over the proposed project.

One resident said he had lived in many developments all his life and had yet to meet a builder "who gave a damn about his development."

Residents in other parts of town offered support. Dennis Volpe, who faces a second 774 project off Reed Street, said any large project impacts the whole town and he was against giving a developer a "blank check."

The board of appeals now has 40 days to issue a decision which MacDonald said would be "hopefully, in the best interests of the town." If a continuance is requested, that time frame can be mutually extended. The decision will be filed with the Town Clerk.

Was it an accident or an incident?

An incident outside the Knights of Columbus Hall in Wilmington just before midnight last Wednesday has generated some controversy.

George Hooper, 48, of Allen Park Drive, was allegedly hit by a car driven by Sgt. James Rooney of the Wilmington Police Dept. The stories told by Hooper and Rooney differ greatly.

Hooper said that he had been in the bar at the Knights of Columbus, and called his wife to come pick him up. Sgt. Rooney, who was off duty at the time, was in the bar at that time, but only drinking cola.

Hooper left the bar at the same time as another man, and offered him a ride home, which was refused. While he was talking to the other man, Rooney came out, and words were exchanged, said Hooper.

Rooney then allegedly got in his car, and backed up, nearly hitting Hooper. He then drove forward, and hit Hooper, said Hooper.

Hooper was knocked to the ground, where he remained. His wife waited until she found someone who she trusted, and then went inside to call the police.

Rooney said he came out of the bar, and not a word was said. After he got in the car, he said, Hooper told the other man "I hope that (deleted) hits me." Rooney said this was told to him later by the other man.

Rooney said Hooper had a drink in his hand, which he allegedly threw on Rooney's car. Then, Rooney said, Hooper threw himself onto the hood and then onto the ground.

Rooney said his car was stopped at the exact time of the incident.

"I had no idea he was going to pull a stunt like this," said Rooney.

Rooney said Hooper's wife told him to get up, but he said he wanted an ambulance. She then went in to call one.

When the police and ambulance arrived, Hooper said, police never even approached him, only talking to Rooney.

Hooper was put on a back board by the fire department and taken to the hospital, complaining of back pains. He was held for a couple of hours, examined and then released.

While there, he was surprised to hear Sgt. Bill Gable arrive, and ask if he had been advised of his rights.

The matter is still under investigation, but Deputy Chief Bernard Nally said that witnesses tend to back Hooper's story.

Hooper maintains that it is a cover up, a case of police backing Rooney because of who he is. The witnesses, he said, are all friends of Rooney.

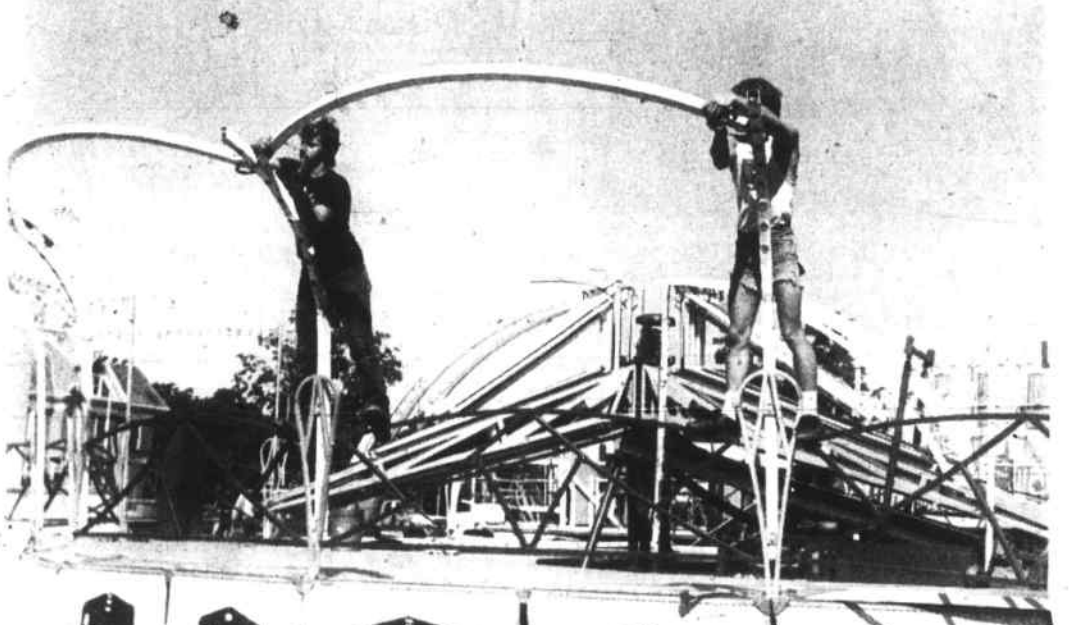

Rhinerson retires from Reading Light

Norbert Rhinerson, for many years the general manager of the Reading Municipal Light Department (RMLD) was tendered a retirement party by RMLD and Reading officials last Thursday.

Wilmington selectmen and Wilmington Chamber of Commerce officials, have, over the past years had much to say about the RMLD, but nothing against its employees, those who did the work. It was Rhinerson who was at the head of that group.

Mr. Rhinerson will retire into the state of Vermont, but before retirement he sent a page to this paper from an Arizona publication about problems that were found to exist in that state when a community took over management of a local electric utility.

Erector set

The Larry Cushing carnival is in Wilmington this week, as a part of the Fourth of July celebration. Sean Sullivan and Darrin Cushing were at work on Monday, putting the rides together.

HOME EQUITY CREDIT CAN BLOW UP IN YOUR FACE.

In spite of what some banks would have you believe, any home equity credit line that is based solely on your home's equity value, and that doesn't have a strict interest rate cap, is a time bomb waiting to explode.

Which is what will happen if you borrow beyond your ability to repay, or if interest rates soar again. You could lose your family home.

That's why MASSBANK for Savings came up with CASHLINE PLUS. A personal home equity line of credit. It has all the advantages of ordinary home equity credit accounts. But none of the hidden liabilities.

It's basically a line of credit for up to 75% of the equity value of your home to a maximum of $100,000.00. Money you can use for anything, anytime, by writing a check.

But unlike other equity credit lines, CASHLINE PLUS is based on your ability to repay - your personal financial condition and outstanding debt - as well as on the equity in your home.

And the interest rate is capped at an annual rate of 14 percent if Prime (as reported in the Wall Street Journal) exceeds 12.5 percent.

So before you start playing with dynamite, call 662-0117, or come in and find out all about CASHLINE PLUS.

At MASSBANK for Savings, we want you to enjoy all the benefits of owning your own home. But we also want to protect you.

By keeping your home, and your equity, intact.

Jeffrey St. Onge to attend Business Week, 1987

Jeffrey St. Onge, son of Mr. and Mrs. David St. Onge of Shady Lane Drive, Wilmington, will be attending Business Week 1987 during the week of July 12 - 17.

The Business Week Program in New England was created in 1981 by the Small Business Foundation of America, Inc., an organization dedicated to research, education, and increased public awareness of small businesses. The goal of this week-long, intensive program is to educate students about the business world and to help them make informed decisions about future careers. The program offers highly motivated young people the chance to learn from people in all types of businesses while living on a busy college campus. Through this experience, students gain a better understanding of the many options available to them in the business world. They are also exposed to the social and economic value of free enterprise and the overall contribution of business to this country.

At Business Week, participants learn that their concern for becoming adequately prepared to pursue the American dream is shared by many of today's business leaders.

Business Week 1987 is sponsored by Bentley College, Waltham. Several faculty members are volunteering their time and teaching experience to participate this year. Along with business leaders who are sharing hard-earned knowledge and experience, they will offer the students a challenging growth experience.

Jeffrey, a 1987 graduate of Wilmington High School and class Essayist, was a member of the Marketing Management Class and an outstanding DECA Club member having won two first place medals in state competition. Jeffrey is working for Altron during the summer months and will enter Purdue University in Indiana in September to study mechanical engineering.

Kathleen Bradley elected 1988 Chambers' chairperson

The Chambers of Commerce and Industry, Northern Middlesex, has announced that Kathleen Bradley, president of Uniglobe Bradley Travel and R.J. Bradley Ski and Sport Shop, has been elected chairperson of the board of directors for fiscal year 1988.

Bradley will take over the seat as of July 1, for outgoing chairman William C. Birch, president of Birch Super drug. Bradley will head up the 25 person board and lead the Chambers into another banner year. Membership of the regional Chambers now exceeds 1,200 with that number expected to increase over the course of her tenure as chairperson.

As a Chambers member Bradley was the 1986 recipient of the second annual Chambers' Woman of the Year award, which recognizes business women for their contributions and commitment to the business community in the Northern Middlesex region. "I'm excited and honored to have been chosen as the new chairperson of the board," said Bradley. "I see this opportunity as a challenge, and a challenge is something I'm always looking for." She also says she's looking forward to working with the other board members.

Chambers President and Chief Executive Officer, Kevin E. Coughlin, says, "Working with Mrs. Bradley will be a pleasure, her knowledge of the area and her business expertise will enhance her role as the chairperson."

One of Bradleys first goals will be to ensure a successful continuation of the Chambers' Visitor and Convention Bureau. "Promoting the region, through the Bureau will be one of the major goals that myself and fellow board members will address during my term as chairperson."

The choice of Bradley marks the first time a woman has held the seat as Chairperson of the Board in the 97 year history of the Chambers.

Bradley says her family is behind her in this new challenge. She is the mother of six children and resides in Westford with her husband Richard.

A confirmation vote will be taken at the final meeting of this fiscal year on June 30th.

Thomas Burke elected President and CEO

The Board of Directors of M/A-Com, Inc., has announced that Thomas F. Burke has been elected President and Chief Executive Officer of the company.

Burke was elected after a nationwide search to replace Richard T. DiBona who suffered a stroke.

He has been Chief Operating Officer since last November and previously was Executive Vice President, Administration and Finance.

He is married to the former Mary E. Sughrue of Tewksbury. They have seven children and live in North Andover.

Nelson Gifford, Chairman of the Board of Dennison Manufacturing Company, served as chairman of the Policy and Nominating Committee of the M/A-Com Board of Directors. Gifford said, "The selection of Burke successfully concludes an extensive search carried on by the Board assisted by an outside consulting firm and management search firm. A number of very well qualified candidates from both inside and outside the company were interviewed and the decision was made after careful consideration of the qualifications of the candidates as well as the current operations and future opportunities of the company."

Burke, 57, joined M/A-Com in 1961 as Assistant Controller. He served as Controller from 1964 to September, 1980; as Vice President Finance from 1974 to January, 1982; and as Treasurer from 1978 to February, 1983. He has been Executive Vice President and Finance from 1982 until he was elected Chief Operating Officer earlier this fiscal year (November 1986), and has been a member of the Board of Directors since 1983.

M/A-Com is a major supplier of components, equipment and systems for commercial telecommunications and defense applications and through its operating companies, is

Playing it safe

Harry Cunningham found himself split right down the middle when it came to his allegiance to a particular team in Sunday morning's Wilmington Rotary vs. Lions softball showdown. Harry was a star for both teams in the 8-5 Wilmington Rotary victory.

Santos City Champion

Tewksbury's Al Santos became the first player since Mark Demaras (1982) to win consecutive Lowell City Tournament golf championships when he charged to the top of the pack with a 217 last week, just a putt shy of breaking the 37-year-old tournament record. His 217 ties the mark set by Demaras and the late Chick Grase. Other Tewksbury golfers competing were past tourney champion Gene Manley (230, 6th), Chris Prince (231, tie for 9th), Al's younger brother Charlie Santos (238 in his first city tournament), John Breen (245) and Keith Caveney (250).

Al Santos now prepares to leave for Florida where he will attempt to earn his professional card and make his mark on the pro golf tour.

Tewksbury red-hot

The red hot Tewksbury Northeast baseball team kept on winning this week by beating Wilmington, 7-4 and Methuen, 13-7, and finishing the week with an 8-1 season record.

Starting and winning pitcher Pete Frend went six innings against arch rival Wilmington, with Tom Gallella relieving in the seventh.

Firstbaseman Chris Mader had a bases clearing double for the three winning runs, with Jay Rideout contributing three RBI's. Al Freitag had an exceptional game on defense for Tewksbury. John Miller and Neil Olson turned in two doubleplays for the Redmen.

Methuen visited Hazel Field in Tewksbury to be drubbed by a 13-7 score, with Tewksbury gathering 15 hits. Jim Pollard picked up the win in relief of starter Chip O'Neil, with Chris Mader getting the save.

Offensive stars for Tewksbury were Pollard with three hits and three RBI's, John Miller with three hits, Keith Krugh, two hits and Mader two hits, with Jim Hamilton contributing a key triple. Dean Graffeo had a good defensive game for the Redmen, making two nice catches.

Tewksbury, only half a game behind league leading Chelmsford plays Lynnfield Tuesday, hosts Woburn Wednesday and Stoneham July 6 at 6 p.m.

Rotary vs. Lions

Rotary wins minus Mac, 8-5

The softball teams of the Wilmington Rotary and the Wilmington Lions Club played their big game Sunday and although it had been billed as the Battle of the Century, it wasn't. Rotary Coach Ray McNamara was absent, over in England watching the Wimbledon tennis games.

Without the aid of McNamara, the Rotary team was able to stagger through with an 8-5 win.

The Wilmington Lions, it is alleged, haven't won a game in two years. The Rotary Club, playing only against other Rotary Clubs, has had five wins and one loss this season.

But the Lions should have won Sunday's game. They had more players. They had 14 and Rotary had only 12.

Actually, in a terms of how many players each club had, the Lions were better than that. They had Rotarian Harry Cunningham playing for them half the time, which made the playing odds 14 1/2 to 11 1/2. And Bob Wright, Wilmington Rotarian, was wearing a Lions Club uniform and playing for that club, which changed the odds even more.

Bob hit the last ball in the game in the seventh inning. It was to rightfield, where the Rotarians quickly retrieved it and whipped the ball to firstbase.

Bob has 12 Rotarians waiting for him to show up at the Wednesday meeting. Each one wants to fine him a buck.

Bob owes a buck

Bob Wright, a Rotarian in a Lions uniform, takes a mighty cut at this pitch Sunday morning. Bob can expect a stiff fine at the next Rotary luncheon.

Rocco takes Lion-sized swing

Former Wilmington selectman Rocco DePasquale lashes a baschit for the Lions during Sunday morning's showdown with the Rotary Club. Rocco and his teammates fell just short, 8-5.

Travel team results

Boys under 10-II

The boys won their last two games over Billerica and North Reading. The game against Billerica a couple of weeks ago gave Brian Carroll a nice birthday present, his first goal of the season. Brian, normally does outstanding work at the fullback position; but on his birthday he spent some time at forward and it paid off.

Assisting Brian on the first goal against Billerica were Philip Bates playing at center halfback and Billy Harrison at rightwing. The game stayed at 1-0 throughout the first and second half, even though some great shots from Dave Bennett and Ryan Hoffman were just barely saved by an excellent Billerica keeper. With 10 seconds left, Doug Olender kept the pressure on, taking the ball up the field and passing off to David DiPasquale.

The final game of the season was played at home against North Reading. The boys had played to a 1-1 tie against this team before.

Goalies Garrett Whittemore and

Andy Kane were named captains for this game which was for second place. Having been kept very busy before, they knew the pressure was on. Halfbacks John Lynch, David DiSantis, Doug Olender and Paul Heigham knew it was their last game in the under 10 division.

None so more than John Lynch, the other three had scored this spring. Having to play center halfback and taking most throw-ins and corner for players in the sixth, seventh or eighth grade, juniors; nine, 10, and 11th grade, seniors. Registration is limited; fee $20. please call Al Maiella 658-4368 or John Mahoney 658-6812.

kicks, the scoring opportunities just hadn't come for John.

Today was his last chance, and this team was good. Sure enough with some great end to end play, the first half ended 0-0. After about 10 minutes in the second half, a North Reading handball at 25 yards out gave Wilmington a break, a direct kick. John, taking most penalty kicks, had a chance. But, with a Billerica "wall" and this far out, it was slim. The kick came up and over the wall and the goalie. A perfect shot, John Lynch had his goal. But the game wasn't over.

Goalie Andy Kane helped his fullbacks, who had just been beaten to save a ball on the 17 yard line. Fullback Greg Dennis, returning the favor, saved a sure goal with his chest for Andy.

Forwards Kevin Kacamburas, Billy Harrison, David Vitale, Danny Bates, Michael Marsi, and Chris DiJulia kept the offensive pressure on, but at the end, the one goal was all they could muster and all they needed.

The team has had a great season, and improved tremendously from the fall. The parents should be proud of these youngsters. Coaches Patrick Hoffman, Dean Bennett and Dave Carroll couldn't be happier with this past season and wish the players success in the future.

Wilmington III Boys under 12

The final game of the season was to be a hot one, but the players were not affected by the temperature.

Wilmington scored first from 10 yards out, with a hard shot off Billy Bates' right foot. Bedford scored to tie it up only two minutes later, but Michael LaCorica saw to it that there would be no tie by scoring with a full field breakaway.

At the start of the second half Billy Bates scored his second goal. Coupled with near perfect offense, and super defense, the halfback line of Rob Bentley, Rich Maynard, and Steven Shaw stopped Bedford's offensive drives at midfield. With the halfbacks working so well it allowed the fullbacks to play a more offensive game and they did just that.

David Cannon, Brian Surran, and Joel Santorelli, all fullbacks, played as if they were halfbacks, which helped the forward line of John Austin, Phil Florence, and Jason Amrock set up Stephen Walsh to score the final goal.

Even with Wilmington playing so well Bedford still had some fine shots on net, but Wilmington had Jeff Morin in goal and he made some almost impossible saves.

This team ended last fall's season with a record of 0-9-1, which gave them last place, but the spring season was a new story. They ended with a record of 6-4-0, which gave them a second place seating. The coaches, Dick Maynard, Gerry Shaffer and Arthur Morin, would like to thank all the players for a great season, and good luck in the future.

outdoors column

by Bill Conlon

The eyes open in the morning to see a hazy skyline, and the nose sniffs the heavy, steaming air. Slowly, the sad reality comes creeping back: Here we go again.

Another day of heat, and sweat, and hard work, with mercury and humidity in a horrid race to see which will be first to reach the level of unbearable.

And so go the days of summer. Sweat and heat -- day after day -- heat and more sweat.

But wedged between the steaming days, something wonderful takes place: the night.

Once the sun sinks below the scorched horizon, the temperature begins to ease. Humidity becomes unimportant, except to those sad tortured souls trying to sleep on bedsheets that stick to sweaty backs.

And as the darkness gathers all around, drawing children to their beds, a few hardy individuals begin to stir. Not many, but a few.

Boats are readied under cover of darkness, jackets gathered, coolers filled, and fishing tacked loaded. Mosquito repellent is checked, and checked again.

Nighttime is the cool, peaceful domain of that select few who chase only the biggest bass. Only a handful of fisherfolks are willing to forego sleep to pursue bass, but rich indeed are the rewards.

Bass, especially the biggest of the breed, do much of their foraging under cover of darkness. The competing pickerel have gone to sleep for the night, and no fish hawks or wading birds remain overhead to threaten. These green monsters swim unchallenged into the shallows, to gulp frogs and minnows, beetles and snakes, before retiring at dawn's first light.

And there the midnight bass fishers meet their quarry. Huge bass, ones that would never enter shallow water during daylight hours, except for the spring spawning ritual, may be found in less than a foot of water under cover of darkness.

Midnight-bass chasers, though, must have different skills than their sundwelling brethren. To tie a good knot in darkness is an art form, one learned through feel and practice.

Another knack is casting to a patch of lily pads, with starlight as the only guide. Yet a third skill is sinking a hook into the quarry, hoping through sound and feel to detect the strike in time to react.

Voices are hushed while fishing in the dark. Few midnight bassers carry radios, for the night itself offers a symphony of natural sounds -- the belching of frogs, the whistling of a whippoorwill and the occasional ker-ploosh of a bass ending the life of some unfortunate swimming creature.

Once the eyes become accustomed to the blackness, it doesn't seem quite so dark after all. Even starshine offers enough light to make out the shoreline, and a bit of moonlight is a blessing known only to the grave-shift crew. Midnight bassers may carry flashlights, but most prefer not to use them. Night vision is far too valuable to risk, and the flashlight will even then be used only briefly, for a quick peek.

Finally, when the eastern sky turns golden around 5 a.m., the midnight crew starts heading back to the dock. Rarely do they leave the pond empty-handed.

Neil Diamond hit the button with the lyrics to one of his songs:

"Thank the Lord for the nighttime. Forget the day."

Midnight bassing is like that.

-- Tackle Box --

A total of 597 anglers from all over the country took part in the Greater Lowell Fly Fisher's annual March of Dimes derby over the weekend. The Merrimack River tourney, an annual event for the club, lasted from 7 a.m. Saturday until 3 p.m. Sunday, with money prizes offered for the ten heaviest bass, pickerel and carp, each.

For what it's worth, this scribe fished both days of the derby, dropping in the boat near the Vesper Country Club on Tyng's Island, and got nothing but soaked in Saturday's torrential rains. Sunday wasn't much better, only drier. The fish are still swimming safely. Oh, well...

The first place bass was caught by Dick Barron of Andover, who hauled in a largemouth weighing 4-pounds-3, worth $500. Second place and $300 went to A.W. Larson for a 3-pound-7 large-mouth, and third place and $150 was taken by Gus Lamont of North Reading with a 2-pound-14 small-mouth.

The pickerel category saw only seven fish registered, out of a possible ten prizes. First place went to lucky young Jason Michaleczk of Lowell, who caught the $500 1-pound-15 fish on oatmeal, of all things, while he was fishing for carp. (Hmmm, gotta remember that one next time.) Second place pickerel and $300 went to Keith Regan of Pelham, N.H. for a 1-pound-7 specimen, and Tom Vayo of Dracut took third place and $150 for a 1-pound-4 chain-side.

The carp category provided the heaviest fish, naturally, and $500 went to Earl Sliger of Tyngsboro for a 17-pound-10 fish. Second went to Rich Lemire of Lowell for a carp weighing 17 pounds even, and third went to Mike Tevepaugh of Lowell for a 15-pound-4 fish.

GLFF ex-president Bob Simard thanked the gathered multitude and said that a bass-only derby is being planned on the river for Sept. 20.

The Mets offense came from Derek Santini's double, two hits from Joey Langone and Richard Blizard's homerun.

Giants 11 Braves 8

In the last game of the year for both teams, the Giants and Braves battled in what is sure to be called one of the greatest Minor League games this year.

Scott Molgard led the Giant offense with a single, double and a triple. Other stars for the Giants were Chris White with two hits and Mark Calandrello who had a big two-run single with the bases loaded. The Giants got good defense from Matt Calandrello and Scott Molgard who made an unassisted doubleplay.

The Braves' offense was led by the Barden brothers, Shawn and Richard, each with a homerun.

Jimmy Largenton and Richard Murphy also hit homeruns. Other hitting stars for the Braves were Bobby Fasulo and Mike Poito with two hits each and other big hits by Jeff Driscoll and Mikelaffin.

Puleo five-hitter keys Astros

Wed., June 24: Joe Puleo fired a five-hitter as the Astros belted the Somerville Elms, 9-1. Scott Bolton paced the Wilmington nine with three hits, including a three-run homer to key a nine hit Astro attack.

Leftfielder Scott Underwood chipped in with a solo homer to aid the cause. Puleo walked only two Elms batters in a route going performance to bring his record to 3-1.

Fri., June 26: The Somerville Red Sox handed the Astros their worst league loss to date with an 8-3 drubbing of the Wilmington entry in the ICL. Brandeis righthander Phil Stephens (0-3) allowed 10 hits and seven runs in three plus innings of work in his poorest showing of the summer season.

Rick Bicknell allowed one run and a hit in his three inning relief stint, but it was not enough. Jim Adamson (.512) and Scott Underwood (.378) paced the Astros' offense with a pair of singles each.

Mon., June 29: The Grannan Club of Arlington exploded for 10 runs in the last of the sixth inning enroute to a 17-7 rout of the Astros. The loss was one of the poorest outings for the Wilmington club in four years. Mark Eddy was the losing hurler in his initial ICL appearance. However, the Astros defense fell apart in the last of the sixth, making six errors to break open a 7-7 tie. The game was a see-saw affair as the Astros had leads of 3-0 and 7-6, but could not hold on.

Joe Puleo hurled the first five innings and allowed nine hits and seven runs, while Eddy (0-1), Larry Thomas and Mark Bartnick pitched the nightmarish sixth frame. Dave Woods, making his debut at firstbase, had three hits, while Scott Bolton chipped in with a two-run triple in the fourth to give the Astros a short-lived 7-6 lead.

Monday, June 22: Undefeated Chelmsford (7-0) bombed the Wilmac A's 12-2. Three homeruns sparked the Chelmsford attack.

Tuesday, June 23: The A's lost a see-saw contest to Burlington, 8-6. The lead changed hands four times.

The starting pitcher was Scott MacMillan who was relieved by Paul Trites in the sixth inning.

Thursday, June 25: The A's bounced back, defeating Dracut, 5-1. Jason Bere was the winning pitcher, giving up just three hits, walking two and striking out six.

Sports clinics

The Recreation Department has two sports clinics for ages eight to 12 that will take place later this month. Both clinics are conducted by WHS varsity coach Dick Scanlon. The baseball clinic runs Each clinic will stress the very basic skills. Cost is $15 per clinic. Sign up in the Recreation office.

Reading banker Vivian Craig

She wants to be a Rotarian

By JIM ROUILLARD

Though she has certainly never been known to beat her own Tom-Tom — in her own home at least she has developed a minor interest in the reputed barbarism of males and the puniness of females.

And by the sheerest of coincidences she is presently involved in an issue whose time has finally both come — and overcome.

Vivian Craig has a long history of strong community involvement and thoughtful dedication to the ideal of service.

When pushed, she may reluctantly touch upon her own achievements — but she is far more likely to display a firm and quiet concern for others.

She is also likely to be the region's first female Rotarian.

The Wilmington wife and mother — and Reading business leader — may be something of a paradigm among women in their increasing emergence in business and industry.

Despite highly touted claims of women holding an increasing number of responsible management posts — and statistics which indicate that women control the nation's wealth in proportions ranging from 80 to 85 percent — until very recently women have been excluded from a variety of service organizations like Rotary.

A recent landmark decision by the U.S. Supreme Court has removed that particular barrier to women's struggle for parity. The court ordered reinstatement of the charter of the Rotary Club of Duarte, California — revoked by Rotary International under the provisions of its own constitution, because the men in Duarte had admitted women members.

The Court's decision, according to Reading Rotary President Mel Slovin, was a welcome one to him and to almost all local Rotarians. Slovin added that the decision has been greeted unanimously with what Rotary International President M.A.T. Caparas calls "delight" or "grace."

In Slovin's view, moreover, Vivian Craig exemplifies the ideal of Rotary Clubs, first formulated by a Chicago businessman in 1905. An hour's quiet conversation with Craig reinforces that view.

Like Mel Slovin, she too welcomes the Supreme Court decision to admit women members to Rotary.

"Women are so involved, as far as the community is concerned, in churches, schools, and other organizations outside the business world, that it's quite as natural for a woman to get involved in business as it is for a man."

She mentioned her own previous involvement as a councillor in Junior Achievement in Wakefield and Lynnfield, teaching high school students what to expect in business and how to devise their own products and form their own companies as preparation for later, entering the business world.

A 21-year resident of Wilmington, Craig is Financial Center manager at Shawmut Bank's Reading office. During her 17-year career with Shawmut, she has furthered her studies with a variety of graduate courses at the American Institute of Banking.

Her application to Rotary, she said, was recommended by Mel Slovin, who called her one day shortly after the Supreme Court decision, to ask if she'd be interested in Rotary membership.

"I said 'certainly,' because anything that gets me out into the business world is good for me and for my bank."

She had also been a guest at a number of Rotary lunches and lectures and said she was impressed with the organizations' strong community involvement, including support of cancer research, help for the handicapped, and other causes in local communities.

She feels that positions of leadership for women, in banking, insurance, and hospital administration for example, have come gradually — "maybe because women accepted their positions — but now it's just a fact of life that women are involved in the community and the workforce."

She added that there is no bitterness in her that an organization that has been around for 82 years is only now coming around to admitting women: "It was just the way of the world. My mother never

Questions and answers

FM TALK: Our gallivanting-around correspondent paid a visit to the Woburn Mall recently, and asked some shoppers what's been on their minds lately. Here are a handful of their responses:

Richard G., of Woburn, had weather on his mind: "We're into the second weekend of summer, and look at it outside! It's raining, and feels more like September. I hope we're not going to be in for another summer like last summer, where we got one sunny and warm weekend out of the entire summer."

Linda J., of Stoneham, said, "I've been following this whole fiasco with the PTL Club, and I find it hilarious. Where do these people get off, preaching about how we should be living our lives so righteously while they live an entirely different lifestyle. I think people who make a living telling people how they should live their lives should make sure they don't have any skeletons in their own closet. I find it hard to believe anything they say now. And I'm amazed how people can still follow them and send money to them! I guess some people just have to have something to believe in, even if it isn't always the right thing."

Bob K., of Woburn, spoke of his concern over the current AIDS crisis: "It's scary," he said. "I'm in my mid-thirties and I think of how I've lived my life over the last ten years or so. I haven't always behaved the way I should have, but I've been lucky. I don't even think about taking those kinds of chances anymore. AIDS has made me re-think about morals and standards and character and things like that. Now I'm looking to settle down, to remain monogamous. I can't believe I'm hearing myself say it, but it's true, and I'm not ashamed to say it publicly. I think if there is anything good to say about the AIDS thing, it's that people are becoming more faithful to each other. And it has

After a warm welcome by Stephen McNulty, chairman of the Regional Board of Directors, Bill Hughes, Reading representative, presented the American Red Cross Certificate of Appreciation for Extraordinary Personal Action to Officer William Allen of Woburn. Officer Allen had saved a child's life by administering cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Special Certificates of Appreciation were presented to the members of the "On-the-Scene" Disaster Team, the volunteers who respond to local disasters at all times of the day or night, such as fires, to provide relief and support to victims.

Gregg O'Ryan, Mass. Bay director of Disaster Services, and Don Walker volunteer chairman of the Disaster Committee, congratulated the following people for their efforts this past year:

Poem

The Glorious 4th of July

Aye, Raise her to the highest mast
Secure and make her halyards fast.

Then wind and rain or gentle breeze
The summer's heat or winter's freeze

Cannot deter Old Glory's wave
O'er the land of the free and the brave.

Our flag has flown o'er Arctic's waste,
Through desert storms and cyclone's haste.

Has proudly waved on ships at sea,
And on the moon made history.
Has felt the sting of shot and shell,
On Iwo Jima's living hell.

So on this glorious 4th today,
I bow my head and start to pray;
"Oh Lord, please grant this land will be,
Forever blessed with liberty.
And let Old Glory raised on high,
As freedom's emblem proudly fly.

By Anthony Manconi

She wants to be a Rotarian From page S-1

worked - I never worked for that matter, and never expected to work. But with the drastic changes in the economy you've got to have two incomes now to raise a family.

"And I think that's fine - because now we, as women, are more aware of opportunities and our own powers. I am a woman - I love being a woman - but if I do a job I expect to get recognized if I am good at it."

Vivian Craig is not yet a Rotarian, of course. Her application for membership is under review by Rotary International. Yet Mel Slovin envisions no problem in approval - in view of the committed local Rotarian backing and Rotary International's response to the Supreme Court order. He also echoes Craig's concern for parity:

"I feel any woman who can handle a man's job should be a Rotarian - and I have no question that Vivian should be a member. Reading is one of the oldest Rotary Clubs - it has a lot of proud traditions," and Slovin clearly feels comfortable within the context of those traditions, by now promoting Vivian Craig's membership.

As for Rotary International, President Caparas issued a prompt reaction last month in a letter to all Rotary Club presidents.

Written from Munich, Germany, at the group's 78th annual convention - as if to stress the international nature of Rotary's commitment to growth and service - Caparas underscored the challenge and opportunity which the Court decision presents to Rotary members:

"Rotary exists under law," Caparas wrote, "and Rotarians are law-abiding citizens of their respective countries. The Rotary International constitution, in fact, provides that only its provisions which are not contrary to law shall be binding on member clubs."

"In view of the Duarte decision, therefore, the provision limiting membership to males is inoperative or unenforceable in California. By extension, that provision will also be unenforceable in any state ... which has a similar law."

"In addition, the Rotary International Board of Directors has decided it will not withdraw the charter of any club in the United States that decides to accept women members."

Caparas goes further, to underscore that Rotary's criteria for membership will not be affected:

"The Duarte decision did not affect our usual selective procedure except the exclusion of women... It did not say that a woman, simply because she is a woman, must be admitted even if she would have been turned down if she were a man because of her lack of qualifications that we look for in a man... Clubs should therefore consider all candidates for membership without regard to sex."

Among some other nations, however, there may still be some distance for women to go.

The Rotary Board concluded it is still under the obligation to enforce the "male only" provision of its international constitution. If it can be shown, according to Caparas, that Rotary's constitutional provision violates any country's law, the male only rule will not be enforced.

Stressing that his and the board's decisions have always necessitated abiding by the law of any nation, Caparas concludes with a gentle and confident plea for amity: "As president of one of our 22,291 Rotary clubs, you have a special responsibility to make sure that Rotary continues to grow and to serve..."

"With our acceptance of women members, Rotary will probably done a lot to keep the institution of marriage what it should be. Hey, let's face it, it's God's way of telling us to cool our jets and to start living our lives more responsibly."

A young fellow by the name of Andrew, from Wakefield, talked about population control, which this columnist found interesting. He said, "I've just finished reading an interesting magazine article which discussed the problems the world will continue to face as a result of over-populating itself. A couple of unusual theories came out of the article. One came from a noted environmentalist who had the astonishing idea that it is better for the United States to simply send atomic weapons rather than food over to some of those Third World countries and to allow them to destroy themselves, because in the long run we'd be doing them a favor. I guess his theory is it is better to thin the world's population out than to try to help it to continue to reproduce."

Andrew went on: "The second interesting theory came from the former president of a noted environmental organization. He pointed out that every social and political problem we face in the world today is exacerbated by rampant population growth. He further stated that every wildlife biologist knows that when a species overpopulates, natural checks and balances take over to control that growth. Well, he said that if the current population growth around the world continues, we are going to find the laws of nature taking over, and something will have to happen in order for this growth to stop, or at least slow down. He also stated that it is very clear that in some parts of the world man has already over-populated to the point where the world cannot handle it. If you ask me, this is very frightening, and the consequences are even more frightening."

Carol C., of Medford, focused on a much lighter subject - the Red Sox. "I haven't given up on them this season, even if a lot of fans have. They've been playing a little bit better lately, and if they continue to play better and the Yankees and the Blue Jays go into a slump, then there's no telling what could happen." She added: "I'd like to see Roger Clemens go to the All-Star game, but I don't know if he'll beat out guys like Saberhagen and Morris, who are both having spectacular seasons. You never know, though, he might get picked. Boggs will surely get voted All-Star third baseman, and there is no question, he deserves to go."

Tony F., of Woburn, said he's just one thing on his mind: "The Fourth of July weekend! I'm looking to have one heck of a time this weekend, even if the weather isn't too hot. But I'm optimistic and I think it's going to be a great weekend."

We at Middlesex East agree that it is going to be a great weekend. We hope you readers have a happy and safe Fourth of July, and we'll see you next week.

be able to shed the 'sexist' label which has hampered Rotary's extension in some parts of the world."

In a minor chord of irony, the message from Rotary International's president came on a letterhead which included, directly beneath the organization's title, a statement of its ideal:

"Service Above Self... He Profits Most Who Serves Best."

Letterheads, mottos, and the choice of pronouns to include both sexes may change or evolve, but the core issue, the setting to rest of the question of admission of women members - in the United States at least - was perhaps phrased best in Mr. Caparas' message:

"Now that debate on the issue of women in Rotary has become futile, Rotarians will have more time to devote to the real purpose of Rotary: to serve."

As conclusion, and something of a more personal footnote to explain what is only apparent sexism in the opening paragraph of this story, the issue of never beating the Tom-Tom must now be raised. As much as Vivian Craig's son may regret the reference, she pointed out that her husband's name is Thomas - as is her middle child's: "So my son is a Tom-Tom," as well as a sophomore at UMass.

His older sister, Sandra, is a Suffolk University graduate soon to begin work at Tufts - and the Craig's youngest child, Janice, is a senior at Wilmington High.

Finally, if it's any consolation to Tommy for printing his mother's remark - and it ought to be - the family also has two cats, with at least equally outrageous names.

The female is Twiggy, christened presumably for her originally puny frame (now long-vanished) and the male, something of a barbarian, is aptly called Conan.

ON YOUR FEET Laser Foot Surgery

Laser Surgery is one of the newest and most significant applications of laser technology in the last two decades. Laser Surgery takes advantage of intense heat generating properties to cut and remove tissue without the undesirable side effects that sometimes result from using a scalpel. The laser produces a man-made light that has only one color and does not produce any undesirable radiation. The laser we use is a Carbon dioxide Laser and it is the most versatile of the medical lasers.

In our office we now use this laser technology in the removal of warts and other skin lesions of the foot. Studies have shown and the "jury is in" on this new method for the treatment of plantar warts. Warts to be removed are identified, anesthetized with local anesthesia if necessary and "lased" with short bursts of laser light. Not only does the laser remove the warty tissue, but it also stops the bleeding and prevents the swelling that usually results in post-operative discomfort. Not only is this treatment effective, but discomfort and limitations are minimal.

Engineers of New England prevent millions in damages

Flood control projects constructed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in New England prevented nearly a half billion dollars in damages during the late March-early April storms.

"The figures have been tabulated for our 35 dams and 86 local protection projects in the region, and more than $462 million in damages were prevented during this spring's flood event," according to Colonel Thomas A. Rhen, head of the Engineers in New England. To determine the benefits, economists calculate what damages would have occurred if the network of flood control projects were not in place.

When the rain began on March 31, 1987, no one knew that the next few days would see a new chapter added to the New England history book. Spring showers, or even heavy rains, are not unusual. But, in this case, the spring flowers brought by these spring showers should have been water lilies.

Mother Nature has a penchant for delivering a one-two punch to New England. Historic floods in 1936, 1938, 1954 and 1955 were all back-to-back periods of heavy rain. The "Flood of 1987" was no different.

The first storm arrived on March 31, 1987 and lasted for only two days, but during that time from one to five inches of rain was dropped on the New England region. While the heaviest rain fell on southern New England, particularly in Connecticut and central Massachusetts, the severest impact was felt in the northern sections of the region where it caused melting of the heavy snowpacks. This was especially true in Maine, where the snowpack was the heaviest and no federal flood control dams had been built to hold back waters.

When the rain began again on April 4, amounts ranging from 1 1/2 to more than six inches fell on already swollen streams, nearly full reservoirs and saturated ground throughout New England. But, unlike the earlier storm, this four-day downpour impacted the most on the Connecticut and Merrimack river basins.

Recognizing the flooding potential early, the New England Division's Reservoir Control Center closed the gates in all of the Corps' 35 dams in the region on March 31 and began storing water. Some minor releases were made on April 2 and 3, between the rainfalls, but the water levels in the rivers downstream of the dams were too high to allow the release of significant amounts of water, and the pools built up. As a result, the lakes behind the dams ranged from 1 to 76 percent of capacity when the rain began again on April 4.

As a result of the two storms, 21 Engineer reservoirs stored record amounts of water, one tied a previous high, and five others set new records for the second most water ever held back. Region-wide the dams stored an average of 75 percent of their total storage capacity, for a total of 865,980 acre-feet or nearly 275 billion gallons of water!

Six dams impounded the maximum amount of water possible, and the additional flow was passed through emergency spillway channels into the rivers downstream. Of these dams, which included Knightville Dam on the Westfield River in Huntington, Massachusetts; Ball Mountain Dam and Townshend Dam on the West River in Jamaica and Townshend, Vermont, respectively; Surry Mountain Dam and Otter Brook Dam on the Ashuelot River and Otter Brook, respectively, in Keene, New Hampshire; and Edward MacDowell Dam on Nubanusit Brook in Peterborough, New Hampshire, only Knightville Dam had ever reached spillway crest before, and that was in 1949.

While the 35 dams were holding back water during the flood event, the 86 local protection projects and five hurricane barriers constructed by the Corps in the region were also put to the test. The dams are located on tributaries of five of the region's major river basins, and, by reducing the flows entering the mainstems, lessen flooding along the entire length of the river. The local protection projects, usually consisting of floodwalls, dikes and pumping stations, allow high flows to pass safely through highly developed areas.

The entire network of flood control works in New England was constructed at a cost of $482 million. It nearly paid for itself in the 1987 flood event alone, preventing damages of $462,596,000. When added to damages prevented from earlier floods of $1.8 billion, the projects have saved New Englanders close to $2.3 billion in losses, a nearly five to one return on investment.

The most damages in any state, $224.2 million, were in Connecticut, followed closely by $201.7 in Massachusetts. For the remaining New England states, amounts were $7.6 in Maine, $14.4 in New Hampshire, $10 million in Rhode Island and $4.8 million in Vermont.

By utilizing data from the Engineers' sophisticated satellite-based collection network, controlled releases from several other reservoirs prevented them from reaching maximum capacity. The network features 45 remote data collection platforms located on rivers and streams near Corps projects. Data on river levels, flows and precipitation is transmitted via microwave to the Goestationary Operational Environmental Satellite (GOES) and then back to New England Division headquarters in Waltham, Massachusetts. These hydrologic data and predictions provide flood control regulators with the information needed for signalling when to close flood control gates, when to open them and how fast the reservoirs of stored floodwaters can safely be emptied.

GOES was launched in 1974 by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The New England Division began using it for flood control purposes in 1984, pioneering the way for use by other Corps of Engineers offices throughout the nation.

GOES serves the western hemisphere with two operational satellites and one spare located halfway between them. Travelling at a speed of 11,000 kilometers per hour and 35,800 kilometers above the equator, each orbits the earth once every 24 hours. But, since the orbit lies in the plane of the equator, the satellite and the earth rotate at the same speed. Thus, the satellites are stationary — they are always above the same points on the equator.

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

Dragnet and Benji The Hunted

Dragnet Starring Dan Aykroyd, Tom Hanks, Alexandra Paul. Directed by Tom Mankiewicz. Produced by David Permut, Robert K. Weiss. Written by Aykroyd, Alan Zweibel, Mankiewicz. Rated PG-13 (profanity).

Let's assemble just the facts: "Dragnet" a long running television show, was really never all that exciting and the reruns are about the last thing you'd watch on TV. Dragnet the movie is little more than a 15-minute comedy sketch milked for two-hours. The joke quickly wears thin and the audience is left staring at a translucent, silly plot. Conclusion: Tom Hanks and Dan Aykroyd don't read their scripts. Remember, this isn't the first time they've appeared in stupid movies.

The basic idea of Aykroyd as the straight-laced nephew of the straight-laced Joe Friday is clever enough. And as Aykroyd plays the whole movie with clenched jaws and moves as if he had a pole shoved up his back, the nephew bit works fine. Countering this stoniness is Hanks as his new partner, a smart-mouthed, randy cop with (gasp) a personality. What's wrong here is the plot. There isn't one. Or at least, there isn't one that makes much sense.

Three writers are credited with an overblown storyline that has Aykroyd and Hanks chasing after the people of P.A.G.A.N., a nasty, L.A.-based group of bad guys who steal porno mags, deface public property and offer virgins up as sacrificial slaughter. They are operated by an evangelical minister (Christopher Plummer) and the hissing head of a pornography empire (Dabney Coleman). The idea is that these two will be able to control all the money in L.A. through their joint venture.

Out to stop this outrage are the Dolorous Duo. But about all they do is go through the same motions we've seen in countless other movies and TV shows.

Watch Hanks and Aykroyd disguise themselves in ridiculous punk outfits, watch Hanks and Aykroyd blunder through a raid, watch Hanks and Aykroyd get into trouble with their superior ("Dragnet" alumnus Harry Morgan).

After the first 20 minutes, when the fun runs out, you'll have to wait for the punchline at the film's end to get another laugh. It really is a good ending, probably the best part of the movie. But wait for it to come to cable or catch it as a matinee. The plain, unadulterated truth, as Joe Friday would want, is that Dragnet is not worth the price of admission.

Benji The Hunted Starring Benji. Written and directed by Joe Camp. Produced by Ben Vaughn. Rated G.

The good news is that Snow White and The Aristocats are both going to be re-released later this summer. The bad news is that until then, if you want to take your kids to the movies, about the only thing around is Benji The Hunted.

If your child is between the ages of 3 and 8 or 9, chances are he or she will sit still for the 90 minutes it takes for Benji The Boring to run its course. Adults are encouraged to bring along magazines and hang out in the lobby.

A little harsh for a cute little furball of a star like Benji? Perhaps, but there really could have been a storyline to accompany the huge amount of animal talent in this flick. Foxes, bears, cougars, wolves, raccoons and Benji acted better in front of the camera than some members of the Brat Pack. Unfortunately the repetitive story, almost completely bereft of dialogue, has Benji rescuing the same four cougar cubs over, and over, and over again. It's enough to make you hope that the legend about Walt Disney being frozen somewhere is true, because it's about time to untaw the old gentleman.

Short Takes

Full Metal Jacket embodies disappointment on a grand scale from Stanley Kubrick. Disjointed, the movie starts out with raw recruits going through the harrowing motions of basic training only to become another picture as the marines strut their stuff in Nam. The homicidal ravings of a recruit

there are lots of spraying bullets and some excellent special effects, and yeah, Arnold gets to fight an alien with an interesting hairdo. But in this case macho means vulgar and action/adventure means that the plot doesn't have to make sense. Also, it is one of the loudest films you'll ever witness, so you have a better

OUTSIDE a mountain hideaway two young cougar cubs are watched over by a protective Benji, in a scene from the new feature, Benji The Hunted.

who's pushed over the edge by his drill sergeant are no more believable than the bleak English background that is supposed to pass as Indochina. The best scenes are the funny ones, as bleak and black as they are. But, is the world ready for a comedy about the Vietnam War? Rated R **

Spaceballs is yet another stupid movie from Mel Brooks. Luckily, it's a stupid movie that happens to have some very, very funny scenes in it. Brooks makes fun of every science fiction flick that ever made a buck, and keeps the jokes coming at a machine gun rate, so if one gag isn't funny, the next one is. Rated PG  1/2

Roxanne is an updated version of "Cyrano de Bergerac" and is as sweet, endearing and funny as the original must have been to 17th-Century audiences. Steve Martin has really come into his nose, er, own, as the firechief with the protruding proboscis. Director Fred Schepisi carried the buoyant, happy tone right through to the happy ever after ending. Rated PG ***

Predator is yet another macho, musclemann flick delivered up as a vehicle for Arnold Schwarzenegger. Sure, for the sake of a storyline. Helen Shaver and Martin Sheen come across surprisingly well in this tale of cult religion and black magic, but someone should cast a spell on scriptwriter Mark Frost for not knowing how to end a movie. Rated R  1/2

The Untouchables may be the best thing to hit the screens this summer. There aren't that many action films made that can claim a superb cast, witty dialogue, lots of style and violence that is guaranteed to make you squirm, but not nauseate you. And while director Brian De Palma does get a bit high-handed and arty at times, this is still such a robust, rousing film you can forgive him. Robert De Niro is at the peak of his career playing the insane Al Capone, and David Mamet's witty dialogue fairly drips from Sean Connery's talented tongue.

Harry and the Hendersons is one of the corniest films you may ever see, kind of like an overdone E.T., if you can imagine that. However, you can't deny that this tale about a family of happy campers and their encounter with Bigfoot is sweet, often funny and quite charming. A real family film, it is made especially palatable for adults by John Lithgow's sincere and sweet performance. Rated PG. * * 1/2

River's Edge is a harsh, compelling, mesmerizing story of a teenager who murders his girlfriend and tells his buddies, who decide to keep it their little secret. A homage to a generation whose personalities have been rendered amoral by the tube and uncaring families, this film is very hard to take. But you can't help but be effected by it, if you can force yourself to watch. Rated R. * * * *

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

My mother made all the important decisions in my family, most of the time she was right. When I was about 10 years old, she had decided that I was to become another, Jascha Heifetz, the world renowned violinist. It was not to be. For after almost a year's study, I couldn't even hold the bow straight. Finally, in desperation and sheer exhaustion, Mr. Ferragamo, my violin teacher, said to my mother, "W.C. Fields said, if at first you don't succeed, try, try again — then quit. There's no sense being a damn fool about it." He then continued, "the only musical instrument that I recommend that he take up is the 'Piano.'"

He can do that by working (when he is older) with Sam Badolato the furniture and piano mover. Later I tried out for St. Anthony's Church Choir. Mrs. Agnes Cassidy, after hearing me sing said, "with that voice you should sing 'solo,' so low no one can hear you!"

That's two strikes. Coach Robert O'Keefe bounced me off the baseball team saying, "you couldn't hit a cow in the backside with a shovel." A cousin of mine said to me, "why don't you admit it, you're good for nothing." About 10 years ago that same cousin on reading Woodchips and poems asked, "Who writes them for you?" I told him, "I do." "Who reads them to you?"

The reason for this long chips is to tell someone out there that the 'Good Lord' gives everyone at least 'one' talent that he or she can share with everyone.

I was a Sunday school teacher for two years. I 'learned' a lot from my class of boys. Dennis Tully said that Adam was born in the late afternoon, a little before Eve. Mike Gaffny continued saying, "They lived in Paradise because they didn't have a mother-in-law, and were 'Abel' to raise 'Cain.'" Billy Drover said that Noah's wife was 'Joan of Ark.' Joseph Ravid said, "Pope John XXIII was an avid golfer, that's why he allowed church attendance on Saturday, so players could be on the golf links early Sunday morning."

Richie Rebidue said, "The patron saint of many who sleep on Sunday mornings is St. Mattress. They are otherwise known as 'pillows of the church.'"

On my last day of teaching I asked the class, "Where was Moses when the lights went out?" Everyone answered by shouting, "In the dark, like you've been trying to teach us for two years."

Forest (Woody) Knowles of Burlington said to me, "Woodchipper I used to be conceited but now I know I'm 'perfect.'" My Uncle John Shea told Rowan Fitzgerald that he weighed only two pounds when he was born. "Oh," exclaimed Rowan, "that was awful small, tell me did you grow any?" "I sure did" replied John, "you ought to see me now."

A gorilla at the Stone Zoo was fixing a leaking faucet with a 'monkey wrench.' Louis O'Malley asked Father Dan, "Father, what is this thing called 'arthritis?'" Father Dan, wanting to scare Louis so that he'd mend his ways replied, "It's caused by excessive drinking and staying up late at night. Tell me how long have you had it?" "Oh, I'm fine thank you, but I read where the bishop has a touch of it."

Folks, if you wish to enrich days, plant flowers. If you want to enrich years, plant trees. If you want to enrich 'eternity,' plant ideals in the lives of others.

Dear readers, please, if it's painful for you to criticize someone, then it's safe in doing it. If you take keen pleasure and delight in it, then hold your tongue. You know folks, it's easy to be an angel when nobody 'ruffles' your wings.

After an emotional sermon a clergyman said, "All those who want to go to Heaven stand up!" Everyone stood up except one little old man sitting in the first pew. "Don't you want to go to Heaven when you die brother?" he was asked. "Oh, when I die, I was afraid you were making up a bus load now!"

Woodchips' Personality Winners for this week, the super stars of softball, Christine, Kelly and Carolyn Carr, three sisters from Stoneham; Charlie Henry; Brother Gallagher; James Goulland of North Reading; Frank Tuttle of Wilmington; Steve Mazdo of Winchester; Olin Brown; Jerry and his lovely wife Kathleen Gately; Brian and his brother Jay Boyle; Jeanne McGarr; and Blanche Ward (switchboard operator at the Choate Hospital), all of Woburn. Robert Skelly (owner of the Stoneham Lumber Co. and president and chairman of the 'Board' of the Chamber of Commerce; and David and Walter Arsenault owners of Pinewood Gardens and Harrow's restaurant in Reading.

Teaching, like motherhood, is an honored and noble calling. Each requires the patience of Job and dedication and love for children. The saying, "as the twig is bent so the tree inclines," was never truer than the lessons learned at a mother's knee or in a classroom. Woodchips therefore congratulates all teachers who are entrusted with the awesome responsibility of teaching with textbooks and personal example, the future leaders of this great country America.

The following North Reading teachers were honored for their 25 years of dedicated service, Claudia Dardeno, Nancy McLaughlin, David Powers, Peter Vennard, Neil Bartlett, Richard O'Brien, Fred Keyes and George Yianakes.

Years ago kids would bring apples for the teachers, today some kids are trying to send their teachers 'bananas.' Some day I would like to meet Kevin John Sowryda, writer of a column in the Town Crier called 'Frankly Speaking.' Kevin, I share your sentiments stated in many of your columns.

Henry Porter is the champion early pea picker of the area. Henry picked the first peas on June 10 in his garden on Columbia Street in Wilmington.

I'm going to buy some of them and save them for next winter's ice fishing. I cut a hole in the ice with a saw, then I put peas all around the rim of the hole. I then sit on a stool and wait until a fish comes up for a pea and 'wham' I hit it over the head with a small baseball bat.

John Fleury and Tim McCaffery received Tewksbury High School's Soccer Awards and no one was prouder than their coach Steve Levine.

Did you know that Woodchips' friend Peter Cortese of North Reading is in the 'Guinness Book of World Records?' In 1952 Peter, weighing only 116 lbs., lifted with one hand, 370 lbs. off the floor and held it for the specified number of seconds. No one has beat that record for 35 years.

Louis O'Malley of Winchester said to me "Woodchipper, your parents must have been weight lifters because they sure raised a 'dumb-bell.'"

Roy Hameon is a retired painter. My cousin Angelo Quaganti is a painter who added water to the latex paint so it would cover more area and he'd make more money. One night in a dream, a voice kept repeating, "Repaint you thinner, repaint."

Don and Mabel Harris are fans of Woodchips. Don works for Boston Edison days and keeps the town 'half-lit' nights.

Joe Altavesta is a retired leather cutter of wallets, purses and handbags. I asked Joe what the most important purpose of 'cowhide' was. Joe smiled and said, "to keep the cow together."

Robert and Gene Collins told me that they had to take one of the cooks at the Woburn Elks away, he had gone 'stir crazy.' My mother-in-law was feeling kind of jumpy so she made a phone call. "Hello," she said, "is this the crazy doctor? How much do you charge?" One hundred dollars an hour. "Goodbye, I'm not that crazy yet, I'll call you later." Happy fourth to all.

Quail Run completes the first phase

Shrewsbury, Mass., June 22, 1987. R.W. Granger & Sons of Shrewsbury have recently completed Phase I of the $12.5 million Quail Run construction project in Woburn. Quail Run has been developed and designed by Unihab, Inc., a Cambridge, Mass., based architectural and real estate development firm. Phase I consists of 28 wood-framed clapboard townhouses. Construction has now begun on Phase II which will include two clusters totaling 33 townhouses, plus a recreation building, pool, and tennis courts.

Unihab partner-in-charge, Gwen Rono, stated that Phase II will be offered to the public in June. Prices will range from about $200,000 to $260,000. A final phase is planned for 33 additional units, for a total of 94 homes, scheduled for completion next summer.

Phase I townhouses are now all under purchase and sales agreements, and more than half are occupied. Phase II is scheduled for occupancy starting in September. Three choices of floor plans are available with up to 1,550 sq. ft. The clustered, gabled-roofed homes offer a contemporary flair to the traditional New England style architectural design. "All the homes are entered from a village green. There is emphasis on quality and detail at Quail Run, in everything from the design and construction to the gourmet kitchen and other interior finishes," said Rono.

On the 48-acre wooded site at Quail Run only 22 acres will be developed, with the remaining land held as a conservation easement. Quail Run is located on Russell Street in Woburn near the Lexington line. The location provides both privacy and accessibility to major highways.

R.W. Granger & Sons provides both general contracting and construction management services and was recently ranked 253 in Engineering News Record's "Top 400 Contractors" list. Its projects are located throughout New England and range from commercial and industrial facilities to hotels, hospitals, condominiums, and other private and public development.

Practices and trends of New Business in the Greater Middlesex East as well as Eastern Massachusetts is the focus of examination. Press releases and notices are welcome. Send them to William Pacino, care of this local newspaper. Buy pepperoni in quantity and health insurance in quality.

MANDATORY HEALTH INSURANCE

Francis R. Carroll, president of the Small Business Service Bureau Inc., testified recently in Washington, D.C. in favor of a bill that would make health insurance a mandatory benefit.

Carroll said he supports the bill, S. 1265, because it will make health insurance more affordable and more accessible to America's small businesses.

Testifying before the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, Subcommittee on Health, Carroll said health insurance costs for small businesses would be lowered significantly because premiums would be community rated.

Until now, most small-business insurance rates have been based on the medical experiences of each firm's employees. A single costly medical problem could make insurance unaffordable for a company with just a few employees.

Carroll illustrated his point with an example: "We recently had a healthy young woman employed at SBSB give birth to premature twins. Her medical bills exceeded $200,000. If she had experience-rated coverage, there would have been a substantial increase for everyone in our group."

Because she was enrolled in an HMO (health maintenance organization), she had community-rated coverage and her medical costs were absorbed by everyone in the HMO. There was no impact on rates."

Carroll said he also supports the bill because those seeking insurance no longer would be required to pass a health statement.

Currently, many small business owners and their employees and dependents are denied access to health insurance because of their medical experience, their dependents' medical experience, or their age.

Some small businesspeople as young as 50 are denied access to health insurance because of their age. Carroll said one SBSB member, a small businesswoman in North Carolina who is trying to obtain health insurance, probably will be denied access because her 13-year-old son has a heart defect.

Charles Wheeler

Bayer USA Inc., Pittsburgh,

recently announced that Dr. Johan Bisschops, a member of the company's Board of Directors, will become a member of its executive Committee, effective July 1. He also has been elected Chairman of Agfa Gevaert, Inc. and Compugraphic Corporation, both of which are Bayer USA affiliated companies.

Dr. Bisschops currently is president of Agfa-Gevaert, N.V., Belgium, a position he continued to hold until June 30.

Bayer USA, the U.S. management holding company of Bayer AG, West Germany, has business in chemicals, health and life sciences and imaging and graphic information systems. In addition to Agfa-Gevaert and Compugraphic, other Bayer USA companies include Mobay Corporation and Miles Laboratories. The combined sales of the Bayer companies in the U.S. in 1986 were $4.2 billion.

PEPPERONI IS KING

In a recent Gallup survey, Americans were polled on their pizza topping preferences. Which topping proved most appealing to the majority? Pepperoni, of course. In fact, a full 50 percent of the respondents indicated that they preferred pepperoni to all other toppings.

In 1986, Domino's Pizza produced more than 160 million pizzas and is scheduled to top that mark in 1987. The world's largest pizza delivery company can verify the popularity of pepperoni. Last year, Domino's Pizza used more than 17-million pounds of pepperoni. Beneath that pepperoni, there were 125.6 million pounds of flour, 1.8 million pounds of custom blend sauce, and 86.7 million pounds of real dairy cheese.

Headquartered in Ann Arbor, Mi., Domino's Pizza operates 3,850 stores in all 50 United States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico and eight foreign countries.

TECHNICAL WRITING

Boston University's Metropolitan College will offer a Certificate in Technical Writing this fall designed for graduates of liberal arts programs with strong writing skills and a desire to move into a technical professional field.

Unlike other technical writing programs, Boston University's curriculum combines writing instruction with courses in specific technical areas, adressing topics in high-demand areas of the high-tech industry such as financial applications, software, communications, operating systems and other areas of specialization. The technical component provides the necessary background and topics for the corresponding writing coursework.

The evening classes and internship are structured to prepare students for employment in as little time as possible. The certificate program requires 20 credits (five courses including the internship), which one can complete in one year by taking one to two courses per semester. Employees in technical positions whose work involves extensive writing, and already employed beginning technical writers, may participate in an accelerated program. For these students, some course requirements may be waived, so that students may obtain a certificate after attending the program for one or two semesters.

Metropolitan College has begun enrolling students for Fall 1987. For more information, call the College at 353-2977, or write to: Program in Technical Writing, Metropolitan College, Boston University, 755 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, Ma. 02215.

Ed Garniewicz of Peabody and Warren W. Howlett of Wakefield, were welcomed as guests. The following new members were introduced: Robert Casey of Melrose, Mike Marrocco of Winchester, Robert Marrocco of Burlington, Dante P. DeBenedictis of Wakefield, William F.
